Minister learns of water issues

The struggle to correct the problem of fluctuating water levels in Haliburton County lakes reached a milestone last Tuesday when federal environment minister Tom McMillan was finally made aware of just how severe the situation is here.

Facing what is possibly his closest election race in two decades, Progressive Conservative candidate Bill Scott was lent some high-level support when McMillan came to Lindsay to speak to students at Sir Sandford Fleming College. And although the water levels issue was not raised during this forum, McMillan did get an earful from the local water levels chairman during a luncheon that day.

Encouraged by McMillan's reception, Harry Davis is calling this a breakthrough. "Just to get to the federal level is a plus to me," says Davis who chairs the Haliburton County Water Levels Advisory Committee. "It's been a long, hard fight."

Davis said McMillan now recognizes that this is a serious problem that has to be resolved. "He's in favour of a study on reservoir capacity and that's what we're after," said Davis.

Haliburton's lakes are at the mercy of the Trent-Severn Waterway, which falls under the control of Parks Canada. As environment minister, McMillan is responsible for the national parks system, which includes the waterway.

The water levels issue has been one of the focal points for candidates trying to win votes in Haliburton County. In a telephone interview last Friday, Scott said he has "maintained over the years that more consideration must be given to the reservoir lakes."

The Progressive Conservative candidate said a study has to be done in conjunction with the province to establish a more stable water level in the 41 lakes that feed water into the Trent Severn Waterway.

Whether it be through negotiations with government numbers or by initiating a Private Members Bill of his own, Scott said he is now prepared to do what is necessary to correct the situation.

While this is primarily a federal matter, Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins has already arranged for a future meeting between Davis and Vince Kerrio, the Minister of Natural Resources. The province becomes involved in this only because any expansion of reservoir capacity will likely involve the use of Crown land.

Federal environment minister Tom McMillan was in Lindsay last week to speak to students at Sir Sandford Fleming College and to help local Progressive Conservative Candidate Bill Scott with his campaign. During his visit here, McMillan had a chance to speak with Harry Davis, chairman of the Haliburton Highlands Water Levels Advisory Committee and to learn just how serious the problem of fluctuating water levels is in this county.

Scott dismisses rumours

"It has never been my intention to do anything else"

Rumours that Bill Scott will retire midway through his mandate if re-elected were finally discounted by the Tory Candidate at the closing of a live CKLY radio debate last Wednesday.

Scott, who has carried this federal riding for the past 23 years, has said little about the rumours that have been floating about since he won the party's nomination by acclamation in late September. Now, more than a month after the rumours were published in an editorial in the Haliburton Echo, Scott is fighting back.

"Contrary to rumours that have been spread around lately, I fully intend to serve the voters in Victoria-Haliburton for the full mandate of the next government," Scott said at the close of the only candidates' forum he will attend in this campaign. "It has never been my intention to do anything else."

In a telephone conversation last Friday, Scott said the rumours are unfounded. Sounding bitter about the "false rumours," Scott repeated his pledge to serve the whole term if he is re-elected.

School matters are discussed

Candidates for trusteeship on the Haliburton County Board of Education had another opportunity to address some of the issues of local concerns during a meeting last Thursday at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

With time ticking down to today's civic elections, the candidates from Lutterworth, Stanhope and Anson, Hindon and Minden townships were given a final public forum, where all the attention could be focused on educational concerns. The meeting was organized by the Home and School Association.

Four of the five candidates in the running for the three seats from Anson, Hindon and Minden were represented at this meeting. Wally Bunn, Mary Anne Wilson, Wayne Cox, and Wendy Ladurantaye each were given an opportunity for a brief speech before the meeting was opened to questions.

It was noted that John Cooper, who is seeking re-election in Minden, had been invited. However, he did not show up for the meeting.

Stanhope candidates LeRoy Eager and Curtis Eastmure both took part in this event, as did Cheryl Murdoch, who is acclaimed as Lutterworth's trustee. Janet Donnery, who is acclaimed in Snowdon Township, sent her apologies for not being able to attend.

The main issue facing trustees in the next three years will be to meet the increasing demand for classroom space at the November seems a "sad" month with dull or rainy days but is surely a "Time to Remember". Many area Legions had parades and services and 'poppies were worn by all. The younger members of these Legions are carrying on the traditions which need to be done. I hope you took time to remember at 11 a.m. on November 11th. I lost many friends in the second World War. Hopefully our youngsters will never need to know the tragedy of wartimes.

Beryl and Goldie Henderson and Mary Cox were away visiting Corporal and Pam Lake and Rachael at Val Cartier.

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down forward, backward and dia-It's as easy as that. Have fun!

RIDE blitz starts soon

The annual Christmas - New Year RIDE driver check program begins on Sunday, November 27 in the Peterborough District.

The OPP RIDE program is a year-round anti-impaired driving campaign. This year the program will be stepped up for six weeks during the festive season with support from area police forces.

This co-operative effort involves 10 OPP detachments in the Peterborough District and the following Police forces: Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Lakefield, and Durham Regional Police Force. The purpose of the joint effort is to increase the possibility of apprehension of the drinking driver and reduce the risk of death and injury on our highways.

Impaired driving remains one of the most significant factors in approximately half of all fatal motor vehicle accidents.

During last year's blitz, OPP officers in the Peterborough District checked 35,371 drivers and charged 33 of them with alcohol related driving offences.

There were 119 drivers who were removed from the road with 12 hour licence suspensions and 48 Liquor Licence Act charges were laid.

Motorists should expect to frequently encounter RIDE stop checks during their holiday travels. Let's make this the safest holiday season ever. Don't drink and drive.

LEADERSHIP with A HUMAN FOCUS

AGRICULTURE

During the past four years total spending in agriculture has increased by 400 percent. Our P.C. government introduced over 690 initiatives worth almost $10 billion to address the needs of the agri-food sector. We believe in the preservation of the family farm and in the rural way of life. And we've taken action to back up that belief. Specifically we have:

- ✦ effectively eliminated all excise and sales tax on farm fuels, saving farmers over $200 million per year;
- ✦ maintained, under tax reform, the $500,000 capital gains exemption for farm properties;
- ✦ established a new long-term dairy policy;
- ✦ established the Farm Debt Review Board;
- ✦ set up the Shared Risk Mortgage Program to protect producers from huge increases in interest rates;
- ✦ introduced a recovery plan for the Farm Credit Corporation to ensure its continued viability.

THE TRUTH ABOUT FREE TRADE

The Free Trade Agreement is an agreement between us and our largest trading partner to reduce tariffs on goods and services sold across our border. It should not be interpreted as anything else.

Social programs and health programs were not included in the bargaining process. This was a fundamental premise on which the negotiations were entered into. Furthermore, these programs which are available to all Canadians are a distinct and necessary feature of the Canadian society are not considered subsidies under accepted international trade law and practice.

"Anyone who says that social and health programs are affected by the Trade Agreement either hasn't read the agreement, is lying, or is engaging in the worst kind of scare tactics." Hon. Don Mazankowski, Deputy Prime Minister, Lindsay, Oct. 31.

Article 603 of the agreement allows Canada to establish measures that restrict trade "if the demonstrable purpose of such a measure or procedure is to achieve a legitimate domestic objective." Article 609 says this means "an objective whose purpose is to protect health, safety, essential security, the environment or consumer interests." Clearly it does not affect our environmental programs either.

Similarly it does not affect, in any way, our agricultural marketing system or marketing boards.

What we are doing today can and will be done under the Free Trade Agreement.

"I continue to believe that, if you keep telling the truth, sooner or later you will be found out."

Representation is ensured

It is encouraging to note the number and quality of candidates in the running to represent Anson, Hindon and Minden on the Haliburton County Board of Education - especially after the hard-fought win in the debate to increase this township's representation by one seat.

Just over three months ago, the board was wrestling with the redistribution from the various municipalities. Population figures indicated that Minden should gain one trustee, while Dysart should lose one. This caused a good deal of friction as the five Dysart trustees argued vigorously in favour of protesting the status quo in spite of the numbers.

A convincing argument was raised that, since Minden had trouble getting even two people to stand in the previous election, there was no sense in opening a third seat on the board for this part of the county. Fortunately this weak sort of logic lost out in the final vote and Minden was allowed the representation it deserves.

Judging by the presentations made during the candidates night at Archie Stouffer school last Thursday, this municipality, as well as Lutterworth and Stanhope, will have very good representation after today's election. Strong representation will be important over the next three years to keep up the fight with the Ministry of Education for funding for an addition and to keep this a priority in the board.

I think if I get to come around in another lifetime, I would like to try and learn to play chess. I won't be mastering it this time around. I took a stab at it one rainy afternoon many years ago. The chess set was beautiful - all black and white marble. My teacher was patient and knowledgeable, my brain was still flexible and largely uncluttered. I memorized the various attributes of kings and queens and knights and pawns and then sat down to play my first game.

I lasted just long enough to get an unnerving glimpse of how mind-wrenchingly complex and convoluted the game is. I wanted to scream, frisbee the chess board across the room and pound my knights and bishops and pawns into a rubble of undifferentiated marble dust. My mentor must have noticed the steam coming from my ears. He boxed the chess men and folded up the board.

"You" he murmured gently, "do not have quite the proper temperament to play chess."

Indeed. A little too much of Conan the Barbarian in my makeup I'm afraid.

Not that the game of chess turns out noticeably noble champions. An American by the name of D.

Courtroom cameras spell trouble

Editor:

Good Day! First of all I would like to thank all the good people of McKayville who again have made my children's Hallowe'en a successful one. Thank you!

There are also a few things I would like to get off of my chest. Which are: They are examining the prospect of installing television cameras in the courtrooms. To me this would be a great injustice. The reason being that people who have been charged will be guilty by association. You will see him or her like in the case of the Grange Commission and Susan who.

Another thing is "free trade". Free meaning no cost, no charge, trade - to barter, to exchange; the two words don't make good comprehension and at 20 cents on the dollar I don't see how.

Pick up an Atlas and compare the populous of Canada to the United States. They are virtually crowded. Will the Americans come here for holidays when and if our dollar is equal to theirs?

I don't like tax on toilet paper, obstetrical pads, band-aids, and most of all food or candy.

OHIP will soon be like credit cards. If you're close to the limit no treatment "come back when you have the cash".

I also think that television should be kept out of politics. Did you see the three-way debate video? If you had Sylvester Stallone run against Ronald Reagan who would look best?

I would like to have everyone with a roof over their heads and a full stomach before looking elsewhere.

Last of all but not least of my concerns is pollution. I am glad to see something done about this. But the removal of leaded gas will not solve anything. Farm tractors, construction equipment, chainsaws, lawnmowers and some older vehicles malfunction on no-lead gas, burn more oil, more fuel and therefore more pollution. Will new equipment be supplied? Not likely.

Others share frustration

Editor:

Prior to Thanksgiving, an editorial appeared in The Times regarding water levels in Haliburton County. As the President of the Gull Lake Cottagers Association, and a Property owner, I am writing to assure you that others share in the frustration of low water levels and support your intention to make this an election issue. I have fielded many complaints from irate cottage owners in the past few years on this matter.

The irony of the situation is that as a result of an audit of the Trent Severn Waterway newly installed computer programs were to result in more efficient management of the resource this past summer.

I don't have to elaborate on the result.

There is room for compromise on this issue, the only problem is "negotiation" is not part of the

Geese flew in formation

directions

by Edward Moll

Bill Barnes died two Fridays ago. His wife, Miriam found him dead in his bed when she came home from work. He was fifty. Cause of death: a massive heart attack.

Bill was caretaker at the church, among other things. He and Miriam lived down Deep Bay Road with a cow, a horse, several chickens, ducks, geese, sheep and lambs, a dog, some cats. He loved animals. He loved farming. He loved Miriam. Bill would come in to clean the church and I would interrupt whatever I was doing to talk. What did we talk about? The land, farming, politics, marketing boards, the threats agribusiness posed for the small farmer, free trade, God, Miriam, all of these things, and then some were echoed off the walls of the sanctuary.

And always, Bill would have that wistful, smiling long to farm again. That would make him really happy, to be home with God's good earth once more. Here in Minden he really couldn't do that, there was simply not enough time, not enough land, not enough money in it.

Early this summer, Bill and Miriam moved near Owen Sound. Bill had found a farm for sale, and a house to build on it. So with some apprehension but no regrets, they moved there. The countryside was beautiful, their neighbours across the road took to them like family, and much to Bill's delight, there was a pond of wild geese just down the road. They would fly past the farm every now and then to land on the water.

Miriam said to me just before the funeral that Bill had never been happier. They spent more time together. "He was so content. It was like he came home at last. When he died, it was so sudden. But he died so happy."

I looked at Bill's body in the coffin. I swear I saw a smile on that still, gentle face.

It was a long way to the cemetery. Clouds scudded by and when the group arrived it was windy and cold. The grave was on the side of the hill. Looking down the long line of gravestones you could see the rolling countryside beyond, evergreens, patches of dark green against the grayish brown of the now-bare trees. Occasionally a bright patch of sunlight would make a hillside glow.

There was a tree freshly planted beside Bill's grave. The committal service was short and as we slowly made our way down the hill we heard an unmistakable sound. Wild geese were flying toward us in formation. We all fell silent, watching as they wheeled past crying out over the hill where Bill was buried.

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow you all the days of your life and you will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Board must maintain pressure

elementary schools in Minden and Haliburton. On this, the candidates were in agreement. The board will have to keep pressuring the Ministry of Education to recognize the need in this county.

Other issues discussed at the meeting included the continuation of morning prayers, the number of administrative staff, the student drop-out rate, and student discipline.

At a recent meeting, the board decided to leave its policy on morning exercises unchanged in spite of an Ontario Court of Appeals decision to ban the compulsory recitation of the Lord's Prayer. Although this matter has been put on the back burner until the ministry clarifies its position, it is bound to resurface and parents are interested in hearing what the candidates feel about this issue.

Mary Anne Wilson summed up her thoughts on this by noting that, ultimately, this will not be a decision made at the local board level. She said she feels comfortable with the continuation of the present practice, but said the province will very likely have the final say.

Curtis Eastmure told the audience he would like to see the tradition of reciting the Lord's prayer kept. However, he agreed with Wilson's feelings that the board will not have the final say in this. With this in mind, he said there will have to be a replacement found, whereby some form of religious education could be taught in the schools with the permission of the ministry.

Wendy Ladurantaye, who has been a trustee for the past three years, noted that the Ontario Public Schools Trustees Association will be arguing that this issue is one that should be addressed by individual boards to best suit the religious and ethnic make-up of the population. If, for example, a small northern school board is serving a population that is made entirely of Cree people, there is no reason that board should have to tailor its religious education to satisfy the ethnic make-up of Toronto.

Administration

Suggestions that the Board of Education is top heavy with administration were soon dismissed by Ladurantaye and Murdoch. By comparison with other education boards, Haliburton's administrative staff is lean, they agreed.

Complaints about the cost of administration have been raised by Tim Casey, a candidate in Dysart et al Townships. When the cost of administration is put on a per student basis, Haliburton County does not fare well. However, incumbent trustees Murdoch and Ladurantaye say this is not a fair basis for comparison.

Regardless of the number of students, there is a certain amount of paper work that must be dealt with, Murdoch said a small board has the same amount of paper work to complete each week as a large one. For this reason, it is misleading to put administrative costs on a per student basis.

Taking one of the examples cited by Casey, Ladurantaye demonstrated just how misleading this can be. In Peterborough County, Casey has said the per student cost for the Director of Education's salary amounts to $4.65. If Haliburton, which has a student population of less than 2,000, was to match this ratio, Education Director Stuart Baker would be looking at an annual salary of about $9,000.

If you want qualified people on the staff of the board of education, you have to be willing to pay a competitive salary. "We would have a poor quality of directorship if we paid him $9,000," Ladurantaye said.

By comparison with all the surrounding boards of education, Haliburton has the least number of administrative employees with nine. West Parry Sound, which is only slightly bigger than Haliburton in terms of student population, has an administrative staff of 16.

Discipline

The increasing amount of foul language and uncontrolled behaviour from many young students is causing some concern among parents, who do not want their kids to get the idea that this is acceptable. This is a situation that is going to continue as long as some kids are allowed to get away with this at home, though.

Wally Bunn, who has four children of his own in the school system, said more parents have to assume some of the responsibility for their children's behaviour. Teachers can only do so much, he said, the real thrust has to come from parents.

LeRoy Eager agreed. "When I was in school, the teacher was law and order," he said. And if you got in trouble at school "you were in double trouble when you got home." Without parental support this situation is going to continue and there is little the board can do about it, Eager said.

Parents are quick to lay charges against any teacher who responds with physical discipline. Even the students have caught onto this ploy and often threaten that the teachers can be sued.

Teachers and trustees have to be afraid of disciplining a student, Eager said. On reflection, he said it really had not changed that much from when he was a student. The only difference is that the fear has gone over to the other side, he said. Now it is the teachers who are afraid.

Atoms show great promise

by Lisa Kerr

Hello Fans.

I'm reporting for this year's Novice A Tri-County team. We're very fortunate to have almost the same team three years running. Jim Todd and Ken Casey have coached for these three years, making consistency in training, showing great results.

We're sure hoping for a great season and judging by our first three games our cheering section, consisting of parents, aunts, uncles, grandparents, brothers and sisters is bound to be getting great pride and entertainment from our team.

November 3 - Oakwood came to Minden to give us one heck of a great evening of entertainment. Both teams showed equal effort, leaving a 2 - 2 game. Oakwood scored twice then, Minden got going with Donnery and Anderson each slipping in a goal.

Our defense Casey and Camelon were strong backups for the whole game.

On Saturday, November 5 we were in Ops for a 6 p.m. game.

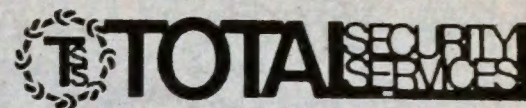

Never has any team member been late getting dressed in Ops because we parents make sure we're in Lindsay at least a couple of hours early. You never know when the weather could get rough down there and we'd miss out on some shopping or eating at a fast food outlet. Anyway, another great game with Kerr scoring our only goal and Walker getting his first shutout.

Sunday, November 6 we were on the road again, heading south to Beaverton. I was told Saturday that Beaverton would be a snap - "now boys they may have improved since last year". I guess I hate to give in to kids so easily but they were right: 14 - 0.

This is a list of each player's achievement: Anderson three goals, two assists; Donnery three goals, two assists; Todd three goals, one assist; Ranson 1 goal; Walker two goals; Stephenson one goal, one assist; Carpenter two goals; Ripley one assist; Daniels 1 goal, one assist.

Special mention goes to goalie Kerr for showing great staying power. It's got to be hard sitting and watching all the action at the other end of the rink.

Mind boggling

Keith Mano wrote: "men who play at the grandmaster level are, almost without exception, strange and unpleasant."

Most experts say the best chess player that ever lived was a 19th century lad from New Orleans named Paul Morphy. Morphy began his career as a gracious and soft spoken member of the southern gentry. He ended it a few years later, refusing to play or discuss chess, puttering about in a gloomy cave of a house obsessed with the idea that people were trying to poison him. He died of hypothermia in his own bathtub. He was 47.

There have been wierder chess champions than Paul Morphy. Bobby Fischer for instance. He was the American who electrified the planet by trouncing the Russian, Boris Spassky, for the world chess championship back in 1972.

Fischer was a boy genius. He won the U.S. Championship when he was just 14. He was only 29 when he thumped Spassky in Reykjavik, Iceland. Fischer showed the world that he was inventive, daring, adventurous and above all an absolute genius on the board.

But Bobby Fischer was not a nice man.

A matter of fact Mister Fischer was a creep. He took obvious and sadistic pleasure in destroying his chess opponents, snickering, sneering and even applauding his own moves. "Chess is like war on a board" Fischer once said. "The object is to crush a man's mind".

Something's certainly applying undue pressure to Bobby Fischer's mind these days. He doesn't enter chess tournaments any more. He's refused to defend his title for the past dozen years.

These days, Fischer spends his time riding a transit bus back and forth between Pasadena and Los Angeles all day long. He memorizes books promoting anti-semitism and white supremacy. You can buy a ticket on that transit bus, take a seat beside Mister Fisher and blurt out "Protocols of The Learned Elders of Zion, Page 35, paragraph four." And Bobby Fischer will recite the exact words, complete with punctuation.

Then there's Viktor Korchnoi. He's a chess star too. Unlike Paul Morphy, Korchnoi's still alive. Unlike the deranged Bobby Fischer, Korchnoi is still playing championship chess.

As a matter of fact Korchnoi has just announced that he is winning a game against a Hungarian grandmaster by the name of Geza Maroczy.

There's just one tiny catch.

Maroczy expired in 1951. Korchnoi claims he's playing chess with a dead man.

How do you do that? Through a spiritual medium, of course. "Our medium doesn't even play chess" says Korchnoi.

Yeah, well ... if you're as good at playing cards as you are at playing chess, Viktor, I wish you'd check your hand.

I don't think you're playing with a full deck.

Rockcliffe at the top

While a large number of players were off hunting deer, Halls' Brian Shaw and the Rockcliffe's Scott Hamilton were having a bit of a shootout of their own at the Minden arena.

Hamilton scored eight goals to help carry his team to sole possession of first place in the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League. Brian Shaw scored six goals for Halls, but it wasn't enough as his team accepted the 11-10 loss, their first of the season.

Last Monday's win makes the Rockcliffe the only undefeated team in the league after three weeks of play. Halls Insurance is in second spot with two wins and a loss, while the four other teams are all tied for third with one win each.

The Standings

	W	L	GF	GA	P
Rockcliffe	3	0	34	17	6
Halls	2	1	29	24	4
Hartwick	1	2	21	14	2
Vasey	1	2	15	16	2
Home	1	2	14	23	2
Times	1	2	14	33	2

In addition to Hamilton's eight goals, Scott Gartshore scored two for the Rockcliffe. Tom Haley scored one for the winners.

Kevin Hamilton and Dave Dollo scored two goals each for Halls in their narrow loss.

Hartwick 12, Times 1

The few Times players who turned out to Monday's game against Hartwick were probably wishing they had stayed home that night.

With Sid MacKeighan leading the way, Hartwick Construction blasted The Times 12-1. MacKeighan scored six times in this lopsided match while Bern Berry added three, Andy Campbell scored two of his own, while Doug Rae potted one.

Hartwick goaltender Kevin Smith had a fairly easy night against the winded Times offence. His shutout was spoiled late in the third period by John Ballantyne.

Home 4, Vasey 2

Unfortunately for Vasey Real Estate, Lawrence Lougheed refused to break his established scoring pattern in the final game of the night.

For the third week in a row, Lougheed managed to earn a hat-trick. And this time it was enough to boost Home Hardware to a 4-2 victory over Vasey.

Dennis McKee and Tom Eager scored the goals for Vasey, while Wheeler added the fourth goal for Home.

Hockey action resumes tonight at the Minden arena with Hartwick taking on Home at 7 p.m. The Times will face off against Halls at 8:30 p.m. and the Rockcliffe meets Vasey at 10 p.m.

Environment versus economy is choice

Editor:

As Canadians prepare for this critical federal election we are faced with a fundamental choice in direction. Do we choose to restore our balance with the natural world, or are we going to commit our future to the powerful stimulant of market economics?

From the perspective of this writer, we cannot do both. The following analogy will explain why.

In many respects, the growth of a society follows the patterns of growth of a single human individual. And growing is very important to us as children since we cannot function effectively without a full-sized body. However, somewhere in our late teens our physical growth stops. Any additional muscle we grow or reserves of calories we might accumulate after age 20 is insignificant in comparison to the successful doublings of childhood. This is a good thing since we couldn't survive many more doublings in our basic size.

Similarly, a few hundred years ago we discovered that industrial production could be done by machines powered from inanimate energy sources. By re-investing the profits in more of the same, the effects could be multiplied and our material growth was stimulated dramatically. This procedure has produced a miracle of abundance and it is no wonder many people see it as the ultimate good for society. The size of our economic activity has doubled and doubled again ever since. This has always seemed for the better, until now as a new element enters the picture. Today our societies are so big and so powerful that we are overwhelming the life supporting processes of our planet. Our waters are increasingly polluted, the atmosphere is changing with potentially disastrous results, forests and the fertility of agricultural land are disappearing at an alarming rate. How many more doublings of economic activity can we survive?

The complexity of the situation is further clarified with the analogy. When we achieve mature size as individuals, we don't stop growing, we just change the nature of our growth. We learn to use what we have in more effective ways, by developing our understanding and skills. It can be the same with society. When you hear that we must control growth, it doesn't mean stagnation, just that our planet can only tolerate a certain amount of humanity's material activities. Further development must be sustainable within that capacity.

How does this relate to the Canada - U.S. Trade Deal?

Market economics is like the growth hormone produced by children. The deal is a major commitment, binding us to follow the United States in their faith that economic growth comes first and all else will follow. Unfortunately, even with supply lines to extract resources from much of the world, the US has lost its economic vitality. They are very much in favour of the Trade Deal because it will give their powerful industrial system access to another half continent of resources with which to continue their material growth. For this reason alone we would do the US and the world as a whole a favour by saying no to the Trade Deal. Otherwise, they would not face up to the limits of the earth for another decade or two, and by then it could well be too late to reverse the degradation of the world's environment.

Canada is in a position to choose. Do we support the goal of sustaining the environment, or do we support growth for growth's sake? The time to decide is November 21.

Mike Nickerson,
Merrickville, Ont.

About face hard to understand

Editor:

The Old Story about the national identity of Canadians goes something like this. We are an uncertain lot, averse to risk, not sure of ourselves or our abilities, very concerned about domination by our southern neighbours, insecure to the point of feeling inferior.

Well, the recent turnaround in public opinion polls on the upcoming Federal Election is the result. Our feelings of uncertainty and insecurity, born from a lack of sincere sustainable commitment, have been made abundantly evident.

An about-face in the magnitude we are witnessing is hard to rationalize. Our political views, the views we hold about the future of our country, must be the result of thought and concern, rather than whim or fear.

All political parties have made Free Trade an issue of proportions far greater than reality indicates. We do know the Free Trade Agreement is a commercial treaty. During his speech in the Commons debate on the Free Trade Bill C-130, Mr. Donald Johnston, M.P. and Minister of State for Economic and Regional Development in the previous Liberal government, stated, and I quote, "No one knows what the total impact may be, but this agreement is terminable on six months' notice. If Canadians feel at a given moment that their ... programs are going to be affected, surely there would be enough national will in Canada to terminate the agreement." Mr. Johnston closed by expressing his intention to vote for the Free Trade Bill.

No party leader has given us the bare, apolitical facts upon which we could make informed judgments. But the issue has served as the catalyst whereby our national insecurity is manifest. Our fear of change and lack of desire to personally examine the issues in any depth leaves us at the mercy of the fearmongers. Perhaps we, somehow, believe that improved or sustained prosperity is only at the expense of our sovereignty. I believe that sustained economic prosperity is the base upon which our independence as a nation is strengthened, not weakened. It is my view that the prosperity which our country has enjoyed this past two years has the best chance of continuing under the present government. Employment has increased. Inflation is low. Our dollar is strong. As the saying goes, "if something works, don't fix it".

I see Mr. John Turner wrapped up in the Canadian flag all of a sudden, but he is wearing nothing underneath. Mr.

Ed Broadbent spreads fears concerning our social programs. We must listen and give thought to what is said. But the fact remains that, in the long term, all social programs including social security pensions and highly subsidized health care will remain only so long as the funding is available to support them. I believe our present federal government offers us the greatest assurance of that - at this time.

Fifty years ago, my grandfather farmed a piece of ground on Highway 121. In those days, the ozone layer was dependable and did its job; the rain brought vigour to the maple trees and there were no garbage dumps to speak of. It was not by coincidence that my grandparents worked their land with a team of horses, preserved their food in root cellars and returned to the land every scrap of vegetable and animal refuse. They understood that waste was unforgivable. For everything they took, they gave something back.

The world has changed and in the process we have forgotten this. In our abundance and wealth we have reached the erroneous conclusion that we can afford waste. But waste is an extravagance that no nation can afford because it wreaks havoc on our environment.

regulation, is allowed to emit 650,000 tons of SO₂ per year until 1994. They have just handed their shareholders $1-billion in profit dividends, while reluctantly admitting that a 40 per cent emissions reduction would cost them only $300-million.

Obviously, the technology is available now, yet the Ontario government is granting Inco six more years of environmentally destructive practice before they must begin to reduce their pollution.

The Canadian Charter of Rights guarantees the residents of Canada that no law is valid legislation that, among other matters, can affect the "security of the person". Inco's emissions are not only destroying our lakes and forests but are also contaminating our environment with heavy metals which are found in high concentrations in the fish that we consume.

For the above reasons I request the following information:

a) All maps and surveys in your possession that show the effect of Inco's emissions on lakes and forests of Haliburton County.

b) All information in your possession that addresses the effect of Inco's emissions on fish flesh.

c) All information in your possession that deals with the effects of Inco's emissions on ground water.

I wish to make it clear that I require this information for the safety of my family, the members and families of our organization, and other residents of Haliburton County. I realize that a large percentage of SO₂ emissions come from other sources than Inco and would appreciate receiving statistics concerning the total effect of acid rain on our county as well as data outlining the estimated proportion that can be traced to Inco.

Thank you for your time. I look forward to your reply.

that are environmentally unsound and by disposing of the garbage we do create in appropriate ways, we will demonstrate to our elected officials the kind of legislation we want to protect our environment. They are slow in understanding sometimes. But, remember, they are not the leaders; - they are the followers. And we, in numbers, create the democratic will which they are obligated to follow.

In the federal campaign, I'm tired of hearing about free trade. We can strike a trade deal later. The government that wins my enthusiastic support will be the one that places environmental concerns first on their list of priorities. And, quite frankly, I'm not willing to open my borders to an elephantine economy that continues to support the likes of the Ohio Valley.

Four of our local skaters competed at Cobourg this past weekend at the Cobourg Skate. Marita Schrader, Kristi Barkwell and Andrea Pawluch skated in the Pre Preliminary Ladies, with Andrea coming in second in her flight and Marita and Kristi skated really well in their flight but didn't make the finals. In the finals of the Pre Preliminary Ladies Andrea placed second overall.

Cori Barkwell competed in the Juvenile Ladies A event and there was only one flight and Cori placed first.

Congratulations girls, you really skated well.

We have some girls competing in Huntsville November 12th weekend. Good luck in your events.

Starting the skating season off in top form are Kristi Barkwell, Cori Barkwell, Andrea Pawluch and Marita Schrader.

Editor:

The NDP meeting held in the Cardiff Community Centre on Monday night, November 7, was a huge success.

Pat Burke chaired the meeting. Elmer Buchanan, the provincial NDP representative from the Hastings riding, brought greetings from his constituents, and spoke briefly on the key issues of this election.

A large crowd listened attentively as Cathy Vainio, the NDP representative for the Victoria - Haliburton riding, outlined her party's policies regarding free trade, disarmament, education, child care, the proposed national sales tax, threats to our global environment, etc. Through their questions the audience voiced their concerns regarding these and other vital matters.

Let it not be said that in this country there is political apathy. There are doubts, fears, some confusion, frustration, even anger but not apathy. Those who set themselves up as our leaders need to get closer to the ordinary people - "the grass-roots" - in order to learn firsthand of the immediate problems and concerns of their constituents. These encounters should not occur merely during elections. The public is not served by politicians who streak like Haley's Comet across the country every 4 or 5 years, then retire into their ivory towers, forgetting all their hand-shakes and promises until the next election rolls around. This system makes a mockery of democracy. No, there should be a continuous, on-going exchange of ideas. Instead of the exorbitant sums of money now being spent on elections, this money should be spread over the weeks and months and years, as "running mates" spend their time out with the people, then channelling the constituents' views back to the MP's.

These two-way encounters, on a regular basis, would promote the political growth not only of the voters but also of the leaders. Only then will Abe Lincoln's vision of democracy as "government of the people, by the people, for the people", be achieved.

Warning to hungry hunters

The Ministry of Natural Resources is again warning hunters not to eat the kidneys and liver from moose, black bear, and deer because of high cadmium levels.

The World Health Organization (WHO) has set a maximum limit of 0.5 milligrams per week for human consumption of cadmium.

Provincewide testing has established that consuming 300 grams (11 ounces) of liver from deer fawns per week is within WHO guidelines. No warning is necessary on the consumption of other meat from moose, black bear, or deer.

Cadmium is a heavy metal which can be toxic at high levels of exposure. It occurs naturally at low levels in the ecosystem but may reach higher levels in some areas.

Cadmium accumulates in the kidneys and liver of some longer-living species such as moose, black bear, and white-tailed deer. Experiments have shown that very high concentrations of cadmium can cause kidney and liver damage in humans.

The ministry issues this warning to ensure the public does not exceed the WHO limit. Ministry researchers first discovered high cadmium levels in moose kidneys in 1984. Since then, with the co-operation of Ontario hunters, samples of more than 1,000 moose, 1,500 white-tailed deer and 200 black bear have been examined throughout the province.

Cadmium levels in moose, black bear, and deer are not uniform across Ontario. Cadmium levels are generally higher in moose and bear than in deer. The ministry's sampling indicates that cadmium levels are generally lowest in south-western Ontario and highest in the central part of the Province. The remainder of the areas tested show intermediate levels. The reason for these regional differences has not yet been established. The ministry is involved in various co-operative studies with other government agencies and universities to determine the pathways of cadmium in the ecosystem.

Look carefully before deciding

There has been much discussion regarding the future of the abandoned railway line from Lindsay to Haliburton. I know this line very well for I spent all my early years beside 'the tracks' in the north end of Lindsay.

Two years ago, while I was serving as Minister of Tourism and Recreation, I approved a study to look into the future use of this Lindsay to Haliburton CNR corridor. A similar study had taken place in the Hastings-Peterborough counties.

There are quite a number of abandoned rail lines in Ontario and each area is different from the others.

I have never had any preconceived idea of what the future of this corridor should be, nor have I been supportive of any concept.

The purpose of approving this study was simply to bring out the pros and cons of proceeding to accept responsibility for this line. Victoria County is especially different. Much of the line passes through prime agricultural land and built up areas.

Consideration therefore must be given to who would assume responsibility for fencing the properties bordering the rail line.

What about spraying along the line and how would this affect farmers' crops and animals? And over the years, more homes have been built up in communities along this railway!

These and other questions must be responded to before assuming ownership and all people, especially those closely affected, must have ample input.

I have not supported any concept, except to make sure that the problems that might be encountered were brought up front and well understood. It's easy to become enthused, but let's understand our responsibilities.

I think this abandoned corridor should be looked at very carefully, and there should be a great deal of public input before any decisions are made.

The importance of trees

by Marion Strebig
Federation of Ontario
Naturalists

Although my view in one direction is a brick wall and in the other a busy street, it is softened and muted by trees. From my apartment window I look into the upper branches of an European lime tree, a relative of our native basswood. In October the view is golden. The street view is filtered through the foliage of a well-treed bank.

Thanks to the tree I work well by that window. It shades me in summer and amuses me this time of year with bird activity. Golden-crowned kinglets lisp among the leaves and chickadees swish in and out collecting sunflower seeds at the window feeder. The tree is also the focus of my cat's activities. Up it she pursues the grey squirrel with the plumed tail almost as magnificent as hers, and at its base she sharpens her claws with furious attention. The tree provides me with an anchor to the earth and a world quite different from the one of traffic and concrete just beyond the trees. Its disappearance would bring desolation to the courtyard.

Now that the chainsaw has made the removal of even a mature tree almost as quick as mowing the lawn, the instant disappearance of graceful giants has become commonplace. In Toronto where Toronto Hydro has embarked on a conversion scheme which involves switching from 24 foot to 40 foot poles, angry citizens complained about the mutilation and removal of trees which were considered necessary for the conversion.

Faced with growing and vocal concern from individuals and resident groups, the city requested a moratorium on further overhead conversion by Toronto Hydro. The moratorium was accepted in January 1988. In May 1988 City Council approved the creation of a Task Force to study Hydro's conversion and to make recommendations about minimising damage to vegetation.

This fall the Task Force will present to City Council recommendations which will include full undergrounding of wires on arterial streets and partial undergrounding on residential streets. The recommendations were aimed specifically at preventing the disfiguring pruning of mature trees which had so upset residents. Both citizens and Government have decided that trees are worth preserving even if this involves a more expensive solution to the problem.

Why all the fuss about trees? There is mounting proof that trees provide much more than just a pleasant view, although even this function is important. Studies have demonstrated that hospital patients assigned to rooms with a natural view have shorter post-operative stays and required fewer strong painkillers than those who lack such an outlook. There is something to be said for a room with a view.

Planning to sell your home? Hold the chainsaw! A US Forest Service study showed that real estate values increase as much as 20 per cent with the addition of trees to property. In 1985 the American Forestry Association did a rough estimate of the annual value that a 50-year-old urban tree would supply. They broke the value down as follows: air conditioning, $73; soil erosion and stormwater control, $75; wildlife shelter $75; and air pollution control $50.

In a sense trees are life. In the process of photosynthesis trees give off life-giving oxygen and water and absorb carbon dioxide. Increased carbon dioxide levels as a result of human activities such as the burning of fossil fuels have contributed to the warming trend which has been christened the "greenhouse effect". Global deforestation in which natural CO2 absorbers, trees, are cut and often burned, is another major contributor to increasing CO2 levels. The City of Los Angeles has estimated the air quality could be improved almost as much by planting a million trees as it would by raising already stiff automobile emission laws.

Substantial urban tree canopy intercepts water and reduces surface runoff drastically. Trees acting as an interruption of the rainfall allow surface water recharge and cut the cost of wastewater disposal. Since the amount of surface runoff has a direct effect on local water quality, cottagers might think twice before reducing vegetation cover on their lots, particularly along shoreline.

Another benefit of vegetation is its ability to buffer noise. The traffic of the main street reaches me, but it is subdued and bearable. Next time you consider tree removal, take out your calculator and figure how much it's going to cost you.

HONDA SNOWTHROWERS

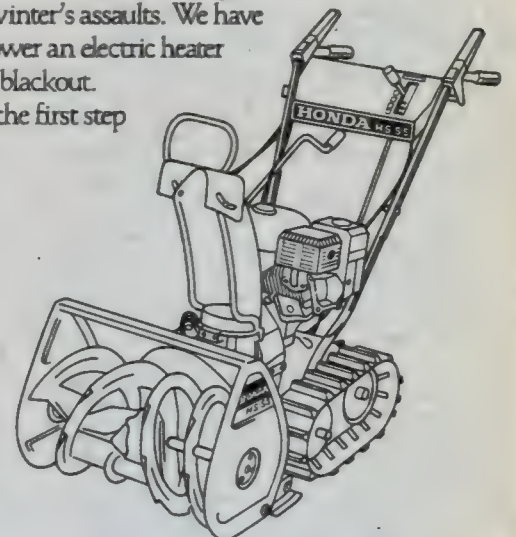

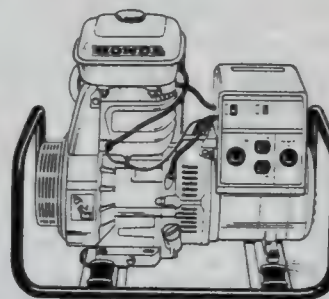

HONDA BLOWS HOT AND COLD.

Canadian winters aren't so hot. Especially when it comes to digging out of a heavy snowfall. Or waiting out a blizzard in the dark because the power's down again.

This year, before winter gets to you, come and see us. We've got the right equipment to put winter in its place. Like our line-up of Honda snowthrowers. Five models ranging from 3.5 to 8 horsepower. Some are equipped with wheels, while others power through the snow with dual-track drive. Our top of the line model features a clearing height of over 18 inches and even has electric start. All have 4-stroke Honda engines that plough through snow with a vengeance.

We also carry an impressive line-up of Honda generators that'll protect you from the worst of winter's assaults. We have models with enough juice to power an electric heater and keep the lights on during a blackout.

Come see us this Fall. It's the first step in warming up to winter.

Horticulturists enjoy annual fall meeting

by Nancy Cook
& Marian Ingram

Once again the Annual Fall Meeting was held at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough, Saturday, October 22. Six people from Minden attended; Illa Cooper, President; Nancy Cook, Secretary; Marian Ingram, Treasurer; Bob Harrington, Past President and Peggy Harrington, Director. All together there were 92 members that attended.

The day started off with registration, coffee and cookies. The business part of the meeting was handled by Jim Trotter, District 4 President and then we listened to our speaker Ms. Ann Jakins from Lakefield, whom we had speak to us at one of our meetings this summer on wild ferns. This time she had wonderful slides of wild flowers and it is amazing how many different kinds there are. I am sure we would all like to dig some of these up and plant them in our gardens, but as Ms. Jakins pointed out, most of them have such long roots you would probably break the root off before attaining the plant, because they are so deep. She pointed out that you can now get wild flowers and bulbs at most nurseries, which is the best way to acquire them. Ms. Jakins also explained why it is against the law to pick trilliums, as it takes seven years for another flower to bloom in its place.

We then had the election of officers which are as follows: President - Jim Trotter; Directors - Ayme Gresham, Berl Harris, Doris Attwell; Treasurer - Hazel Wilson; and Auditors - Mrs. Sid Townsend and Mrs. Roberta Copeland.

Next the Presidents of each society gave a two-minute speech on the subject of Master Gardeners, which was very informative. Anyone interested in becoming one should contact Illa Cooper 286-1164.

We broke for lunch just after noon, pretty well on time. This was a delicious buffet consisting of chicken, baked potatoes and a variety of salads followed by pie and coffee. That alone was worth the trip as Bob will attest. After this, the plants which were decorating the table were raffled off and our Jean Lacey won a beautiful African Violet that she had set her sights on as soon as we sat down.

Doris Attwell introduced the head table and then Jim Trotter, President of District 4 introduced Mrs. Mary Yeaman of OHA President from District 10 in Ottawa. She gave a good speech and one of the subjects she touched on was getting discouraged. We all know that working in a voluntary capacity in any organization can sometimes be very discouraging but she said if we, any one of us can just inspire one other person we are rewarded. That is one way of looking at it. She brought up the subject of the Master Gardener Program which is being promoted to some extent throughout the OHA. There has been some confusion about this and what it entails. It is sponsored by the government and supposing we had someone in our society, here in Minden, who had passed this course, we could direct any questions regarding gardening problems to this person and with the information at their disposal they would be able us a solution, thus taking some pressure off the Department of Agriculture. It is not necessary to belong to a Society, but there is a qualifying test and obligations that must be assumed after passing the course, like devoting so many hours a year to horticulture, by writing a column in the local newspaper, speaking at meetings, etc. We wondered if there would be any monetary remuneration for this. However, anyone who is interested may get the information from the Department of Agriculture. Two young people, at the convention, were taking the course and were convinced it was very worth while.

Mary then read out the names of all the floral emblems of the various societies and Minden is now one of three who chose the Water Lily.

After lunch break we returned to the auditorium and just as we settled in our seats Jim Trotter announced that a Blue Ford Crown Victoria Licence No. I didn't wait for the rest and immediately jumped up saying "That's me" after which he said "You have a flat tire". I flew out to the parking lot and sure enough there it was. Anyway deciding there was nothing I could do right then I went back to enjoy the rest of the programme and enjoy it I did.

We were treated to a talk on House Plants by Mr. Bud Card from Richmond Hill. We all agree that we have never been as informed and entertained at the same time. He told us when choosing an African Violet to take it out from under the light to get the true colour. If we are growing them under lights they should be about four to six inches away and to only keep the lights on 12 to 14 hours or the poor things will be wondering if they are ever going to get any sleep. Like us they need fresh air, but not an arctic blast. Don't over water, let them get thirsty, but then give them a good drink - when we are thirsty we don't take little slurps. Don't fertilize a sick plant, would you like an injection of vitamins if you were sick - please bring me some medicine, let me rest! We could have listened to him for ever. In fact I could go on much longer, but Jean Lacey is going to try to get him for our Annual Meeting in February and if he chooses this subject I wouldn't want to spoil it for those who plan to attend. Maybe all of Minden will come. He is well worth your time. I completely forgot about the car. Ayme Gresham thanked Mr. Card. The President, Jim Trotter thanked our host Society, Lakefield, for what I'm sure everyone thought was a very very enjoyable day and we adjourned at 4 p.m.

Then back to reality and the flat tire, however we were lucky enough to have Sir Galahad in the form of good old Bob Harrington and despite the bitter cold weather he had the spare tire on in no time. Thanks again Bob.

After we got nicely on our way and all warmed up, Marian piped up and asked "Nan how did you know you had a flat tire." She must have thought I was clairvoyant. Never in my wildest dreams did I think of a flat tire - haven't had one in twenty-five years. I just thought that in dotage I had left the lights on.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON: In loving memory of my dear husband, Phil, who passed away November 18, 1986.

Every day when supper time comes around
Tears in my eyes can always be found
All the husbands are going home
Except those who have the urge to roam.
Then supper over and the dishes done
My quiet evening is begun
So all my friends who still have husbands
Treasure them with care
You will never know what loneliness is Till you see their vacant chair.

His wife, Florence.

ROBINSON: In loving memory of our dear Dad and Grandpa, Phillip Robinson, who passed away November 18, 1986.

November is here again, so dark and so drear.
The month we parted with you.
Our Dad and Grandpa so dear,
We miss your caring, loving, cheerful way.
You will live in our hearts forever and a day.
The emptiness ever lingers and the tears surely, quickly flow
Dad and Grandpa, we miss you terribly and will always love you so.

Remembered lovingly by Janice, Jack, Bradley, Doug and Karen.
